Patrick Carney and Emily Ward's Nashville nuptials were extra special, thanks to the creative couple's personal, down-home touches.

On Saturday, the Black Keys drummer, 32, and his girlfriend tied the knot at their home in Nashville in front of 350 guests, a rep for the rocker confirms to Us Weekly.

Saturday Night Live star Will Forte was on hand to officiate the backyard ceremony. For her trip down the aisle, Ward donned a lacy, cap-sleeve Carolina Herrera gown, and walked towards her groom to Tommy James & The Shondells' "Crimson and Clover." (The pair's Irish wolfhound, Charlotte, accompanied Carney during his walk to the altar.)

Carney's bandmate Dan Auerbach was in attendance, and the musician's brothers, Will and Michael Carney and Barry Storer, along with Ward's siblings, comprised the wedding party.

This is the second marriage for the Akron, Ohio native; he divorced writer Denise Grollmus in 2009.

Carney proposed to Ward in Los Angeles in 2011, just a few hours before he was set to attend the Grammy awards.
